Kevin White

This is a new edition of the bestselling textbook for students in the sociology of health and illness. The first edition was widely praised for its clarity, accessibility and comprehensive coverage. All of these features are retained in the new edition. The result is a book that academics and students in the sociology of health and illness will use as a 'first stop' to study. Free of jargon, intuitive about student needs and well versed in course requirements, the new edition will refresh old readers and delight new ones.

COURSE USE: Suitable for students in sociology of health subjects.

Sharing Assessment in Health and Social Care: A Practical Handbook for Interprofessional Working

Carolyn Wallace and Michelle Davies

Shared assessment is the standardised approach to assessment and the sharing of information and documentation within and between health and social care. This book offers students and practitioners a step-by-step guide to the process, helping them to overcome some of the anxieties of change and providing realistic guidance on the process. The book includes pedagogical features such as a glossary of terms, a Comparative Grid for Standardised Assessment Frameworks, examples of carers' assessments, reflective questions and further reading.

COURSE USE: Essential reading for students working across health and social care, particularly in social work, nursing and mental health.

Health Promotion Settings: Principles and Practice

Angela Scriven and Margaret Hodgins

NEW

Health Promotion Settings combines the theoretical discourse of the settings approach, covering a wide range of fundamental principles, concepts and policy issues, with real life examples of settings, including workplaces, schools, neighbourhoods, cities and prisons. Frameworks and processes that are actively shaping health promotion in settings in the 21st Century are documented and the ideas and research covered will provide a vital set of indicators for those who promote health in settings. Combining theory with practical examples and case studies, the authors show how a settings approach can work in practice, drawing on a range of local, national and international initiatives and co-ordinated projects.

COURSE USE: Essential reading for students working towards the improvement of health using a settings approach.

Values-Based Health and Social Care: Beyond Evidence-Based Practice

Jill McCarthy and Pat Rose

Is evidence-based practice really best practice? Bringing together writers from a range of health and social care backgrounds, this book describes the rise of evidence-based practice and explores major criticisms of the approach. It argues that evidence should be seen as part of a broader vision of practice which places equal value on:

- A holistic vision of the needs of patients and clients;
- Professional knowledge and intuition;
- Seeing patients and clients as partners in their care.

Examples are used throughout the book to help readers link the concepts to practice. The book concludes with suggestions on how to develop a values-based approach in practice and through professional education.

Evidence-Based Practice for Nurses

Janet Barker

What is evidence-based nursing? How can I ensure my practice is based on the best evidence? Understanding what is evidence, how to appraise it and apply it to practice, are essential skills for all nurses. Taking a step-by-step approach, this practical book shows how to identify and evaluate the different types of evidence available and to critically appraise the studies that lie behind them. It also looks at the ways in which findings are integrated into practice, showing how research evidence can be applied to clinical decision making and the delivery of patient care.

COURSE USE: Nursing students and practitioners, particularly those on pre- and post-reg courses.

Best Practice in Professional Supervision: A Guide for the Helping Professions

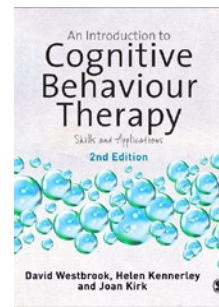

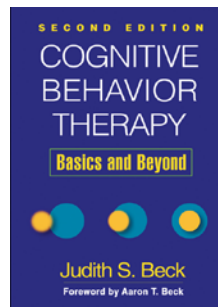

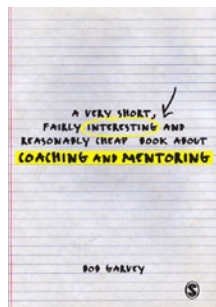

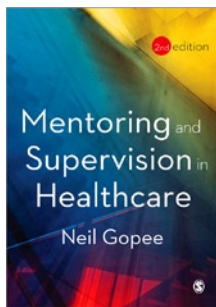

NZ

Allyson Davys and Liz Beddoe

An authoritative guide to being an excellent supervisor, covering the role, functions and dispositions involved. The authors consider basic skills, the practicalities of forming and maintaining the supervision relationship, and the organisational context and culture of supervision. The book offers practical examples and a model of supervision which draws together ideas from adult learning theory and reflective practice. Viewing supervision as a place for learning, this guide considers how supervision can assist practitioners to develop professional resilience and manage the stresses of complex work environments. It also includes specific chapters on supervision of clinical student placements and in child protection settings.

COURSE USE: Suitable for students undertaking supervision or supervision training in social care, nursing, counselling, social work and allied health professions.

COACHING AND MENTORING

Mentoring and Supervision in Healthcare 2ed

Neil Gopee

NEW

This practical and accessible book examines the knowledge base, skills and attitudes required for mentoring in the context of healthcare. Revised and updated to take account of the latest developments in healthcare, the text explores theories and research on mentoring by analysing their strengths and weaknesses. To complement his analytical style, Neil Gopee has introduced more interactive features to emphasise the application of theories and principles to various clinical settings. He also draws on the most recent standards and competencies for mentors and supervisors, and examines how they can be applied in day-to-day mentoring and clinical practice activities.

COURSE USE: Core text for mentor preparation courses in nursing, midwifery and across the healthcare sector.

Mentoring Nursing and Healthcare Students

David Kinnell and Philip Hughes

What does effective mentoring mean in actual practice? How can I be a good mentor? This book answers these questions and is designed to offer nursing and healthcare students a foundation in effective mentoring. Chapters examine the roles and responsibilities of the mentor, and how they enhance the process of mentorship. By examining the relevant competencies and knowledge base, the book provides an essential framework for developing the practice skills needed for successful mentoring.

Key Features include:

- Real-life practice and case study examples;
- Tips for successful mentoring and likely challenges;
- Interactive study activities linked to the student and mentor's experiences;
- Themes of reflective practice; evidence-based practice and multi-professional working.

A Very Short, Fairly Interesting and Reasonably Cheap Book About Coaching and Mentoring

Bob Garvey

NEW

Written to challenge, stimulate and inform, this book takes a critical look at the rapidly-growing field of coaching and mentoring. Focusing on all types of organisation, public, private, large, small and not-for-profit, Robert Garvey inspires and provokes readers by asking questions such as 'Are coaching and mentoring the same?' 'Are we obsessed with skills?' and 'What is performance?' He also delves into contemporary debates such as concerns about standards, competencies and codes of ethics, interspersed with views on power, control and politics.

COURSE USE: Suitable for courses in human resource management, leadership and management in nursing.

COGNITIVE BEHAVIOUR THERAPY

Cognitive Behavior Therapy: Basics and Beyond 2ed

Judith S Beck

NEW

The leading text for students who want to learn the fundamentals of cognitive behaviour therapy (CBT), this book is eminently practical and authoritative. In a highly accessible, step-by-step style, master clinician Judith S Beck demonstrates how to engage patients, develop a sound case conceptualisation, plan treatment, and structure sessions effectively. Core cognitive, behavioural, and experiential techniques are explicated and strategies are presented for troubleshooting difficulties and preventing relapse. An extended case example and many vignettes and transcripts illustrate CBT in action.

COURSE USE: Suitable as a text in graduate level CBT and psychotherapy courses.

Nursing and Multi-professional Practice

Janet McCray

This book offers nursing students an introduction to, and a foundation in, multi-professional practice. It explores the reasons behind the changing face and redesign of many services in health and social care, and it looks at how this affects the readers own role in the emerging multi-professional partnerships and teams. Nursing and Multi-professional Practice will help students to develop the skills for effective collaboration. It has been designed to map onto the pre-registration curriculum and will be invaluable reading for all nursing students, as well as professionals and trainees working at the interface of health and social care.

What Makes a Good Nurse: Why the Virtues are Important for Nurses

Derek Sellman

In recent years, the human values at the heart of the nursing profession seem to have become sidelined by an increased focus on managerialist approaches to health care provision. Nursing's values are in danger of becoming marginalised further precisely because that which nursing does best - providing care and helping individuals through the human trauma of illness - is difficult to measure, and therefore plays little, if any, part in official accounts of outcome measures for healthcare. In this book Derek Sellman sets out the case for re-establishing the primacy of the virtues that underpin the practice of nursing in order to address the question: what makes a good nurse?

Professional Skills in Nursing: A Guide for the Common Foundation Programme

Rita Debnath

What do I need to learn in order to progress through my course? How do I achieve the best possible patient-care? Professional Skills in Nursing answers both of these questions and supports the development of key nursing skills underpinned by theory. Designed specifically to meet the needs of nursing students in the initial stages of training, the book focuses on the essential knowledge and skills needed for effective patient-care while at the same time helping students to achieve the NMC outcomes required for entry into branch programmes.

Key themes in healthcare such as ethics, evidence-based practice and health promotion are discussed throughout the book, highlighting how these relate to everyday nursing practice. Focusing on the core skills covered in the initial stages of training, Professional Skills in Nursing is the ideal introduction for students during the common foundation programme.

COURSE USE: First year pre-registration nursing students.

Introductory Statistics for Health and Nursing Using SPSS

Louise Marston

Introductory Statistics for Health and Nursing Using SPSS is an impressive introductory statistics text ideal for all health science and nursing students. Health and nursing students can be anxious and lacking in confidence when it comes to handling statistics. This book has been developed with this readership in mind. This accessible text eschews long and off-putting statistical formulae in favour of non-daunting practical and SPSS-based examples. What's more, its content will fit ideally with the common course content of stats courses in the field. The inclusion of real-world data and a host of health-related examples should make this an ideal core text for any introductory statistics course in the field.

COURSE USE: All health science and nursing students.

HEALTHCARE IN PRACTICE

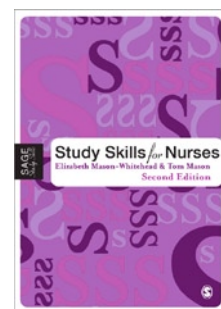

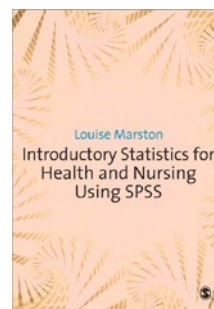

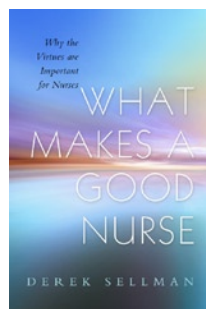

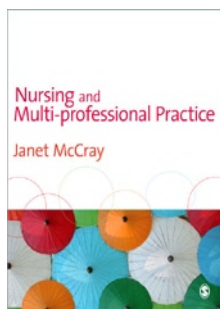

Supporting People with Learning Disabilities in Health and Social Care

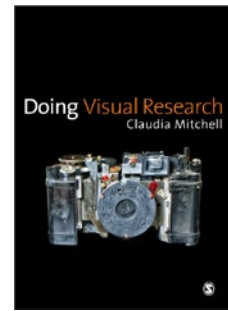

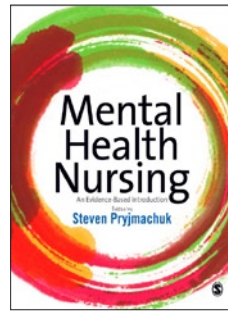

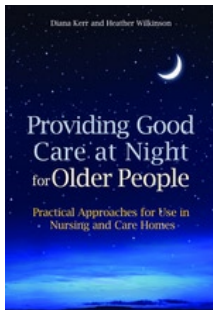

NEW

Eric Broussine and Kim Scarborough

This reflective and evidence-based book will equip students as well as professionals who work with people with learning disabilities in primary, secondary and specialist healthcare settings, with the knowledge and skills they need to work effectively with people with learning disabilities. Chapters, written by leading academics and practitioners in the learning disabilities field, examine and discuss core issues, while a case-study approach ensures a solid grounding in practical skills. This practical element is further reinforced by the inclusion of service-user and practitioner 'voices', whose lived experiences make the book even more engaging, as well as a range of reflective exercises and regular opportunities for readers to self-audit their learning. Reflecting the multi-professional nature of services for people with learning disabilities, this book will help practitioners and students make a real difference to the lives of people with learning disabilities who access health and social care environments.

Providing Good Care at Night for Older People: Practical Approaches for Use in Nursing and Care Homes

Diana Kerr and Heather Wilkinson

This book provides night staff, their managers and anyone else with an interest in care homes during the night with the information, knowledge and practical skills they need to deliver positive and appropriate care at night. The authors look at all of the issues that are particularly pertinent in caring for older people at night, including nutrition and hydration, continence, challenging behaviour, medication, night time checking, pain management and end of life care.

They also look at the impact that working at night has on care staff, and offer practical suggestions to help them to safeguard their own health. The final chapter provides a set of night time care guidelines for inspectors that can also be used by managers to evaluate night time practices in their homes.

Counselling Adolescents: The Proactive Approach for Young People 3ed

Kathryn Geldard and David Geldard

OZ

In this third edition of their bestselling text, Kathryn and David Geldard provide a practical introduction to the principles and practices required for successful counselling, to show that working with young people can be both challenging and effective. The book is divided into three main parts, covering:

- How to understand the young client as a person;
- A pro-active approach to working with young people;
- Counselling skills and strategies needed.

This third edition has been revised and updated, and includes two new chapters: Maintaining a Collaborative Relationship, and Professional and Ethical Issues. Additional practical case studies and examples show how counsellors can work pro-actively with this age group.

COURSE USE: Excellent resource for trainees in courses on counselling, social work, psychology, occupational therapy, mental health and psychiatry, nursing, and education.

RESEARCH METHODS

Doing Visual Research

Claudia Mitchell

Doing Visual Research offers an innovative introduction to the use of photography, collaborative video, drawing, objects, multi-media production and installation in research. Claudia Mitchell explains how visual methods can be used as modes of inquiry as well as modes of representation for social research. The book looks at a range of conceptual and practical approaches to a range of tools and methods, while also highlighting the interpretive and ethical issues that arise when engaging in visual research. She draws on her own work in the field of visual research throughout to offer extensive examples from a variety of settings and with a variety of populations.

COURSE USE: Suitable for students across the social sciences, and in particular in education, communication, sociology, gender, development, social work and public health.

Scale Development: Theory and Applications 3ed

Robert F DeVellis

NEW

This book presents complex concepts in a way that helps students to understand the logic underlying the creation, use, and evaluation of measurement instruments and to develop a more intuitive feel for how scales work. Robert DeVellis demystifies measurement by relating it to familiar experiences and by emphasising a conceptual rather than a strictly mathematical understanding. Students' attention is drawn to important concepts that are foundational for subsequent topics, with opportunities provided to test understanding through chapter summaries and exercises.

COURSE USE: Suitable for students on graduate courses in departments of psychology, public health, nursing, education, and marketing.

Action Research in Healthcare

Elizabeth Koshy, Valsa Koshy and Heather Waterman

This book is a practical guide to using research for improving practice in healthcare contexts. As an increasingly popular method of inquiry, action research is widely used in healthcare to investigate professional practice and patients' experience while simultaneously introducing innovations, planning, actioning and evaluating new ideas, seeking to improve patient care and working collaboratively. Taking you through the process step-by-step, Action Research in Healthcare explains how to tackle each stage of your project, from planning the study and undertaking a literature review, through to gathering and interpreting data and implementing findings. Examples of action research projects are included throughout to illustrate how the method works in practice.

Action Research in Healthcare assumes no previous knowledge of the subject and is the ideal resource for anyone about to start or already involved in a project.

COURSE USE: Nursing and health students studying research methods at postgraduate level.
